TRUSTEES' REPORT

The Board of Trustees of the Peabody Institute in Peabody herewith submits its sixty-first annual report for the year ending January 31, 1913.

Each year of service on this board brings more forcibly to the minds of the members, the rare privileges the citizens of Peabody enjoy without price; for the Institute has been able in the past to carry on its work without any appropriation of the public money.

In this it is an exception among the libraries of the state. But with the growing needs of the library this condition cannot last much longer.

What seemed at the time Mr. Peabody made the endowment an ample sum for the needs of the Institute has reached its limit and should the work be extended even to the extent of establishing a separate reading room for children, some extra source of income will have to be provided. This comes about partly by increased demands of the present day and partly by the lesser rates of interest now in vogue.

It was with this in view that the Trustees had inserted in the town warrant last year the article asking for an appropriation equal to the cost of electric light and water to the Institute to offset the extra cost of an assistant for a special reading room for children. At the time we made application for the appropriation we had not threshed out the matter of the location of the reading-room and when we came to give the matter more serious thought it was not easy to settle on a temporary location which did not seem to be a waste of the Institute's money. Before many years an addition for extra stack-room will be imperative and at such a time a permanent location for a children's room can be made. It is possible to locate such a room in the Wallis House which is owned by the Institute.

The writer has recently visited in a neighboring town a library where the children's room is so located, in a separate house and the idea seemed very practical.

But we felt that we should not act hastily on this matter as in taking that house we reduce our working income and so for the present we have thought best to return to the town the amount paid for the electric light and water by them, namely, $371.31 and rest the reading room question until such time as we can make some permanent disposition of the matter.

We would call particular attention to the report of Mr. J. W. Hudson for the Peabody Library, who writes for Mr. Thomas Carroll whose failing health prevents him from making the report this year and the Board heartily coincides with all that Mr. Hudson says of him who has served so long and honorably.

No large expenditures have been necessary on the property in the year just passed for we are reaping the benefit of extensive repairs made within a few years.

The Institute lost an able treasurer by the expiration of Mr. Thorndike's term of office. Mr. Gallagher was elected to fill his place and has carried forward the work well.

We cannot express too much praise for our janitor who has looked after the best interests of the Institute as faithfully in the last year as he has for many years in the past.

You will note that the Lyceum committee has started on the education of our future citizens by giving two lectures in the Greek language.

FRED W. BUSHBY, President,

For the Board of Trustees.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Lyceum and Library Committee

To the Trustees of the Peabody Institute.

Gentlemen: I transmit herewith the reports of the librarians and of the sub-committees of the Lyceum and Library Committee.

They present in full the work of the Institute for the year ending Jan. 31, 1913.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. HUDSON,

Chairman, Lyceum and Library Committee.

Report of the Peabody Library Committee for the Year Ending Jan. 31, 1913

The Committee regrets that the long and valuable series of Annual Reports by its chairman, Mr. Thomas Carroll, is this year interrupted by the condition of his health.

In November last Mr. Carroll tendered his resignation as a member of the committee, moved by the feeling that he was not able to perform the active duties of the position. The committee however declined unanimously to accept the resignation, and asked him to reconsider it. This he has consented to do.

It was felt by the Committee that the long and faithful service of Mr. Carroll gave him a peculiar relation to the Library and that all friends of the Peabody Institute and the public generally would wish him to hold his present place.

Moreover, though at present unable to give the Library the full measure of service which he has given in former years, his intimate knowledge of the contents of the book shelves, the history of accessions and the management of the Institute are still available to the Committee whenever his advice may be needed.

Mr. Carroll's connection with the Library began with its earliest years, and his official relation to it is longer than that of any citizen of Peabody now living. It is to be hoped that this relation may continue in the future as a place of honor for one who has served the Institute long and well.

The undersigned has been asked to act as temporary chairman, and would briefly report that the work of the Library has gone on quietly and successfully during the past year. The additions to the catalogue have amounted to 797 volumes including purchases and gifts.

Of this number 592 have been purchased, 130 volumes of periodicals and pamphlets have been bound and 70 volumes are the gift of the United States Government, the State of Massachusetts and of individuals and institutions. Of the purchases 172 volumes (above 30 per cent.) are works of fiction, which as usual, outnumber all other classes of books.

The days of the great masters of fiction have passed for the present at least, and no books of this class of distinctive importance have appeared during the past year, but those added have been carefully selected and furnish wholesome and interesting reading.

It would be impossible in this report to call attention to all or even many of the more important books purchased, but a few may be mentioned, not as more noteworthy than scores of others, but as in a way representative of the classes to which they belong.

In General Literature few books of the year so well repay reading as that of the English Ambassador, Hon. James Bryce, on South America. This book is interesting not only as a personal record of travel but also as a discussion of the principles and problems that underlie the future of that continent in its relations to the United States and other countries.

The seventh and eighth volumes of Emerson's Journal cover a period of his life of special interest and add much to the importance of this series.

The various classes of books that come under the head of Sociology have in recent years attracted universal attention, and of these the Library has added many volumes covering all phases of the subject.

Employers who have read "The New Industrial Day" by William C. Redfield, on relation of the employers and the employed, have found it a sane and instructive treatment of this difficult subject.

Among the Biographical books two of a somewhat similar character have attracted many discriminating readers. These are "The Last Leaf" by Professor Hosmer, and "Anglo American Memories" by George W. Smalley. Both of these largely consist of personal recollections of eminent men in Europe and America.

The lovers of Mark Twain find abundant interest in three volumes of the life of Samuel L. Clemens by Albert B. Paine.

The wants of the young people have not been forgotten, and the list of "Juveniles" has been increased by the addition of 70 volumes. Many of these will be found interesting and instructive by grown-up readers.

The Librarian notes a slight falling off in the circulation of books.

Two causes it is thought largely account for this; one wholly creditable, the activity of business during recent months which has left the people less leisure for reading. It is noticed in all public libraries that the circulation of books rises and falls inversely to the pressure of business.

The other cause which undoubtedly contributes to the same results is more questionable in its effects. The good book has to compete increasingly with other sources of entertainment.

The growing interest in athletic sports, the picture show, and in some measure books of a character which would not admit them to this library, together with other similar influences must be reckoned with in the fluctuations of our circulation.

We are pleased to note, however, that the tide has recently turned and the call for books is increasing.

The Peabody Institute with its admirable library and other adjuncts is an honor to the town. It stands among our chief agencies for the public good. It has been of inestimable value in the past and should command the interest and encouragement of all our people that it may worthily meet the increasing opportunities of the future.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN W. HUDSON,

Chairman pro tem.

Reading Room Committee

To the Lyceum and Library Committee:

The Reading Room Committee herewith respectfully submits its report for the year ending January 31, 1913.

The general orderliness of the Room seems to have somewhat improved during the past year.

But two changes have been made in the periodicals taken, the Cosmopolitan Magazine having been discontinued and the Literary Digest, added.

A number of books and papers in the modern Greek and other foreign languages have been placed in the Room for the use and benefit of our growing foreign population, and it has been gratifying to note that they are appreciated by these people.

The matter of a separate room for the children, which was mentioned in last year's report, has been taken under consideration by the Trustees during the year, and as numerous inquiries have been made regarding the same, the Committee earnestly hope that a way may be found in the near future, to open such a room for the accommodation of the children, which will be apart from the main reading room and library.

FRANK TAYLOR, Chairman.

Report of the Eben Dale Sutton Reference Library for the Year Ending January 31, 1913

To the Lyceum and Library Committee of the Peabody Institute:

This Library has maintained its usual work during the past year. Its business is always conducted quietly and effectively. A noticeable feature being the reserve and reticence observed by its patrons, their dignified and interested demeanor indicating the work of the student or the scholar. Whether in the investigation of some special subject, or the admiration of some work of art, visitors always seem to be imbued with the dignity of the surroundings. This feature may be characteristic of Reference Library work, but is a condition that does not pertain to the same extent, in any other public institution. And yet this Library is not by any means an exclusive institution, for all our citizens are cordially invited to participate in its privileges.

The telephone which has been in use in the Peabody Library, has been extended to the reference Library and will be found useful for both institutions.

In the establishing and furnishing of the Library, a clock was not provided. This indispensable article was purchased this year. A selection was made to harmonize with the furnishing and finish of the Library. It was an adjunct that patrons usually looked for and they will no doubt be pleased to find the want has been supplied.

The report of the Librarian gives in detail the work accomplished during the year.

The accessions include Thorpe's Dictionary of Applied Chemistry, Fenollosa's Epochs of Chinese and Japanese Art, Champney's Irish Ecclesiastical Architecture, Northend's Colonial Homes, The American Pilgrim's Way in England, Sir Walter Besant's London, and Colonial Homes in Philadelphia.

For the Committee,

P. H. O'CONOR, Chairman.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT

To the Lyceum and Library Committee:—

An uneventful period, unmarked by innovations, is the record of the year that has just closed. It is not meant by this that no improvements remain to be made in our service, but the more obvious are necessarily deferred for the present by limitations of space and financial resources.

One hopeful feature of our service is the growing use of books for the teaching of the English language to foreigners, of which we added a good sized collection three years ago; this year we have also added a few selected books in Modern Greek, consisting of descriptions, histories and manuals of the United States and histories and description of Greece, and the use of these has been very satisfactory, especially so since the two lectures furnished by the Lyceum Committee to our Greek residents. It is proposed to add regularly to this collection as its use warrants and our funds permit.

The work of recataloging the older portions of the library goes steadily forward, and 1,080 volumes, represented by 2,313 cards, were recataloged during the year. Practically all of this work is represented by the printed cards of the Library of Congress, these having been received fast enough to obviate the necessity of type-writing cards in the time available.

Our membership in the Library Art Club has been continued, and the following exhibitions have been given:

Group of dates (art periods),

Feb. 27-March 16

---

Views in the Tyrol,	March 18-April 6
Japanese prints (first series),	April 8-April 27
Ireland, (second series),	June 24-July 13
Egypt, (second series),	Aug. 26-Sept. 14
Buckingham Palace,	Sept. 16-Oct. 5
Cotton and silk,	Oct. 7-Oct. 26
Days near Rome, (first series),	Oct. 28-Nov. 16
Walter Crane's pictures, (second series)	Nov. 18-Dec. 7
American Indians,	Dec. 9-Dec. 28
Engravings of old English masters	Jan. 6-Jan. 25

Of these the Indian pictures were easily the most popular, especially with the children, who came daily in numbers while the exhibit was on view.

Unfortunate infirmities in health have deprived both the Library Committee and the Librarian of the valued services of Mr. Carroll, the chairman of the committee, since the early summer. While his absence from the meetings of the committee is a distinct loss to them, it is even more so to the Librarian who has felt, and still feels, keenly the loss of his personal advice and council in the daily workings of the library. His former almost daily visits and his genial chats upon books and library affairs are a very pleasant memory.

Mr. Carroll has been connected with the library since its very inception over sixty years ago, he has seen it grow steadily from its first modest collection to its present size, has given most unstintedly of time and energy in its behalf, and this public service, a true "labor of love" upon his part is heartily appreciated by trustees, committee and townspeople alike.

The duties of the assistants have been satisfactorily performed, and our janitor, Mr. McKeen, has as always, been willing to do more than his fair share to contribute to the institution's success.

Statistics hereto appended give a fairly comprehensive view of the work of the library during the year.

Respectfully submitted,

LYMAN P. OSBORN, Librarian.

Report of the Lyceum Committee

The Committee have so far given three lectures of the five arranged for.

The First

A lecture on "Sailors' Yarns and Chanties" by Mrs. Bessie R. Buxton and Mrs. Durland. Lecture well attended and very interesting.

The Second

A lecture on "American History and Ideals" by Mr. Canoutas of Boston. This lecture was given in Greek to the Greek people of this town. It was given in two sections. The first lecture was given on Christmas night before a large audience. Music was sung by Greek children and played by the wife of the lecturer.

The second part was given New Year's Night to a smaller number. Both lectures were listened to very eagerly and proved to be a success in every respect. The success of this plan was due to a large extent to the work of Mr. Daniel C. Manning, a member of the committee.

There are two lectures yet to be given. One will be given under the auspices of the Historical Society. This lecture will be given by Mr. Mead of Boston and music will be furnished.

The last of our course will be the speaking contest by the school children. This will be given in April and will include together with the speaking, tableaux and folk dancing. This evening will be largely under the direction of Mr. Geo. A. Clifford, a member of the committee.

My report of last year did not include the two final lectures of our course. These were of a most excellent character and worthy of special notice.

One was the pageant given by the Historical Society. This was one of the finest things ever attempted by this lecture course. It was held in the large town hall which was filled to its capacity. The pageant covered the first century in the history of this town and included a play, "Giles Corey, Yeoman" by Mary Wilkins which covered the same time. Special mention should be given to Mrs. Lyman P. Osborn and Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Bushby for their work in producing this pageant.

The other one was our speaking contest by the children of the Public schools, this too, was held in the Town Hall which was again filled to its capacity, for the second time during this course. It was a most enjoyable and profitable time. Prizes were awarded by a competent committee. Music was given by the school children under the auspices of Mrs. Furguson. This feature was under the direction of Mr. Geo. A. Clifford who most ably carried it through.

Respectfully submitted
